INVESTMENT PRINCIPLES

Fusion Optima portfolios aim to systematically harvest risk premiums while minimizing the costs of the investments by utilising ETFs with high liquidity and low charges. These are carefully selected from a wide range of well-established product providers, targeting outperformance of their respected benchmarks.

The range is based on systematic Strategic Asset Allocation, aiming to maximise expected long-term return within well-defined risk parameters. Medium-term market forecasts are overlaid to adjust the allocation by incorporating current market trends.

MARKET COMMENTS

January provided a constructive start to 2026 for global equities, with all major markets climbing higher in local terms, despite political tensions. UK investors saw these returns slightly diminished due to currency movements, with sterling notably strengthening against the dollar. Overall, global equities finished the month 0.2% higher in GBP terms, while global bonds slipped marginally, returning -1.1%.

Geopolitical risks increased significantly following the US operation to remove Venezuelan President Maduro, simmering tensions with Iran, and Trump's threats to impose tariffs on European countries that opposed his plans to take over Greenland. Although tensions have eased following the Davos gatherings, many assets sensitive to geopolitical risk reacted accordingly: gold rose 13% in January, despite a sharp 10% drop on the last trading day and European defence companies jumped 18%. Despite these headlines, broader equity markets overall remained largely unfazed in local terms (US +1.3%, EU +2.4%, UK +3.1%, Japan +4.9%). Within equities, a 'broadening' theme continued to play out, involving diversification away from US technology large caps. A beneficiary of this was emerging markets, which enjoyed a very strong month (+6.7%), outperforming developed markets by 6.5%. Performance was driven by technology stocks in Korea (+25%) and Taiwan (+13%) as AI-related semiconductor demand continued to accelerate. Latin America also strongly advanced, buoyed by higher metals prices and solid foreign inflows into Brazil (+17%). Commodities had a strong start to the year (+8%), as oil prices rose 14% while gas prices surged on colder-than-expected winter weather.
